LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE.

THIS is the time when all good boys and girls begin to look forward to a vacation and take a serious view of the future. Some have dreams. Others have ideas. The former will be dissipated in harsh contact with a cruel world and the latter have a chance of pulling through after battling with reverses and experiencing hard knocks and keen disappointment. It takes courage for a youth to launch on the sea of life, especially where he is dependent on his own efforts and the matter of education supplies the strongest armor. When the student is not equipped for the fight he is going forth into life handicapped in every particular and in later years he will come to a realization of his own shortcomings due, perhaps, to indolence and neglect of opportunities of school days. The graduate is prone to indulge in high down thoughts of standing on the threshold of life, girding on the sword of combat and other trite metaphors, none of which they understand and will not understand until they have had a lot of school nonsense knocked out of their systems. Those who have been taught that the world owes them a living will have to disabuse themselves of that vagary and get down to a hustling basis before they find the meal ticket coming regularly to their lodgings. If they have parents of an indulgent turn they may find their way to college and higher education paved with the hard earned dollars of their progenitors, who gild the path to ruin and grease the toboggan slide to mediocrity for their offspring. Nine-tenths of the boys who enter college would do better for themselves and the world at large if they started out with a muckstick and developed their muscles with a year's course on the farm or in the mine. College, instead of being a training school, usually becomes a corrupter of morals, a despoiler of manhood and a nursery of vicious and expensive habits that clog a man's usefulness in later years. It depends on the boy.

College is a fad that has been cultivated by a false system of education. The public schools are conducted on the theory that every boy and girl is going to find a finishing stage in some high class college and, with that object in view, pupils are rushed along with a superficial knowledge of a great many things and a smattering of everything, but nothing of the solid foundation that formerly accompanied the three Rs. Reading is an unknown quantity. Writing is a memory, and arithmetic is left to the adding machines and mechanical appliances to be found in every counting room of the world. It is unfortunate that the young idea cannot be impressed more seriously with the fact that only one student out of 10,000 is successful in business or professional life and that one out of 50,000 borders on the line of genius. Boys and girls should be taught they are merely commonplace and that if they want to get out of the rut into which others have fallen and to which their own steps are leading they must dig, study, work and use diligence in advancing themselves to the heights of their aspirations.

Widows' sons and daughters make the best men and women, for the reason they have to work and are taught to employ their talents and apply themselves to overcome responsibilities thrust on them in early life. When they go to college they go there to work their way through, and it is not a rare instance that they find means of educating themselves and also sending a few dollars home to help their mother. They have an incentive to work and this incentive generally brings its own reward.

NATIONAL EXTRAVAGANCE.

THAT happiness does not depend on money, but on a proper relation between expenditure and income, is to most intelligent people a stale platitude. A farthing's balance on the right side of the ledger means all the difference between poverty and affluence. Yet in spite of its antiquity and its wisdom not one in a thousand pays any attention to this truism.

To a certain extent we are all fatalists. We live up to our incomes—often beyond them—we live up to the last extreme of bonded indebtedness—often beyond it, and trust to some mysterious Billiken to pull us out of the hole when the crisis arrives. It's the same with cities, nations or individuals. So there are more "bond" slaves than bondholders.

Sparks Tribune: During every political season the same old games are started to fool the people and graft off the candidate. Another one of these is now coming to the light in the announcement of the new weekly papers that are to be started in various sections. They are not under the head of legitimate enterprises. They are simply fly-by-night-ers and the same minute that the last vote is cast they drop into oblivion. Their only purpose is to get what easy money they can as fast as they can.

And yet the legitimate newspaper is expected to contend with them. The paper that is with you day in and day out, fair weather and bad weather, is expected to come out into the field and divide the business with these carpetbagging enterprises.

It will be a good idea if the candidates use their judgment and discriminate in favor of the legitimate enterprises.

The Panama Pacific promotion bureau must have a small idea of the intelligence of editors when they use a two-cent stamp in mailing publicity matter. This is another case of the ostrich hiding his head in the sand.

And now the question arises, Are the waters of the Brazilian river discovered by Colonel Roosevelt any better than those of Ahama and Phargar, rivers of Damascus?

With California, Oregon, Washington and Nevada all back in line for the straight Republican ticket, Teddy will have quite a time mustering a corporal's guard on the coast.

According to a Nevada girl a Reno stepfather is better than a California millionaire husband. This is a patriotic sentiment if she is not looking for alimony.

A correspondent of the New York Sun calls the I. W. W.'s "ulcers of society." He couldn't very well have called them "scabs."

John Pierpont Morgan has cut many melons, but the best Mellen he ever had was the one at the head of the New Haven road.

The accounts of the Niagara peace conference will be kept in double entry, and not single, there being two sides to the case.

It is said that Sir Conan Doyle is to visit the United States. It is to be hoped that the report is more than a detective story.

There is as much rejoicing over the return of Mexican refugees as there was over the return of the prodigal son.

If the militant suffragettes could be got on the run woman suffrage would make greater strides in England.

Some railroad men bear charmed lives. Mr. Mellen came out of the great New Haven wreck safe and sound.

Congress may be suffering from "that tired feeling," but it comes from work and not from ennui.

Niagara is certain to take a fall out of some of the parties represented at the peace conference.

Colonel Goethals' powers are to be as wide as the canal zone and to extend from ocean to ocean.

President Wilson will have to call in the mediators to restore peace in his official family.

A dutiful wife is one who does her duty as she sees it and not as her husband sees it.

The mediators will have a hard time trying to teach the Mexicans that A. B. Cs.

If Lawrence were alive today he would doubtless say, "Don't give up the canal."

Tonopah is prosperous, judging from the way taxes are being paid in advance.

CARSON CHILD TO BE BAPTISED MASONIC RITE

The Masonic Scottish Rite ceremonial of baptism will be performed Sunday afternoon at the Masonic temple upon the two-year-old son of William M. David, grand master of the grand lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Nevada.

The conferring of the baptismal ceremony will be for the first time during the history of Nevada Masonry. In other states the ceremony is likewise infrequent, as but few are honored by the fraternity.

The ceremony will take place Sunday afternoon, commencing at 2:15 o'clock and will be public for Master Masons and their families.

The son of Grand Master David is a native of Carson. The announcement that the boy has been chosen for baptismal honors was made a number of months ago, and it is believed that Masons from all parts of Nevada will be present to witness the ceremonies, which are declared to be impressive in the extreme.—Journal.

SPARKS WOMAN SUICIDES.

Mrs. Nick Ploder, wife of the night officer at Sparks, committed suicide yesterday afternoon at the railroad town by shooting herself through the heart. No reason is given for the act, except that for some time past she had been suffering from melancholy. The deceased was 26 years of age and native of Bohemia. Besides a couple of sisters she left a four-year-old boy.

TALENT SOCIAL AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

For some time the members of the Ladies' Aid have been busy earning a dollar or more for the treasury of their society. This evening they will give a social and turn in the money and tell how they earned it. Ice cream and cake will be served through the evening and the proceeds added to the ladies' earnings. A short musical program has been arranged. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

QUALITY vs. PRICE

WHICH SHALL IT BE?

Most people count more on quality than they do on price. But if there be any who consider price before quality—we wish to emphasize the slogan, "Quality is the truest test of cheapness."

While we emphasize quality in every department of our business, we also protect your interests in the matter of price—we afford the real economy that consists in getting the best goods at lowest possible cost.
